Fortistic Congress Second Sension.

The name of the office was changed the section under consideration did not awar propose that, but the office was changed to the office was changed to the office was changed to the section of the second Sension.

The name of the office was changed to the section of the section of the second sension under consideration did not awar propose that, but gentlemen were anticipating the fill and discussing sections which follow. The section of the secretary of the Senates are secreted to the section of a new Secretary.

On motion of Mr. Conness, the rule require ing the election to be by ballow was suspended, said Geo. C. Gerham, by C. Gallow, the rule require ing the election to be by ballow was suspended, and the Secate will be the secretary of the Senate and one diff honest men seconded the motion of Mr. Changes are seconded the motion of Mr. Guckaison, and the Senate the second the motion of Mr. Buckaison, and the Senate the second the second of the second of the second t

Treasury, and it was ussless to say that the Secretary of the Treasury had not been informed of the frauis that had been perpetrated.

The matter had been called to the attention of the President, and he had not made remotutive Department of the Government, and upon no other department.

All, Wood said it was admitted that the President only appointed the higher officers, and the frauds were committed by inspectors and store-keepers. See that the committee of the committee of the frauds were committed by inspectors and store-keepers. All, Allison repisons that the top divide the frauds were committed by inspectors and store-keepers. All, Allison the proceeded to argue in relation to the think the frauds were suppossible it was therefore best that the law should be definite, or that the responsible it was therefore best that the law should be vested in some one certain individual.

Mr. Allison then proceeded to argue in relation to the whisky tax and to favor a reduction thereof. Its believed that the reduction that were now so frequent. Reduce the take, and distillation would be carried on in the grain-growing regions, and not in the cities, where it was made out of moiasses, and where there were so many opportunities for fraud.

At the continuing of the speech of Mr. Allison, the committee proceeded to consider the Mr. Hillian of Maine, moved to a trike out the first section of the bill, which created a Department of Internal Revenue. This clause proposed to give all the appointments of revenue officers to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. Mr. Long, of Ill, was surprised at the argument of the gentleman, and he desired it would have the effect he stated.

Mr. Judd, of Ill., moved to amend by providing that the Commissioner of laternal Revenue abould not be removed or suspended.

Mr. Wood, of N. Y., argued that under our Constitution and form of government the with regard to the rejection of good sames by the Senate, because the effect of their confirmation, would be to put Hepublicans out of office.

Mr. Njcholson, of Del, took the same view as that submitted by Mr. Heek, to the effect of the same view as that submitted by Mr. Heek, to the effect of the same view as the submitted by Mr. Heek, to the effect of the same view as the same view of the same view as the view of view
